

Aromatic Aster

Aster oblongifolius

Late blooming, low maintenance, long lived native wildflowers with high value to bees, butterflies, fireflies and birds. A go-to plant and a pollinator superfood

Raydon's Favorite Aromatic Aster

A well behaved and spectacular variety suited to a variety of landscape situations.

Grows to 3 feet tall and wide, does not spread, and blooms early October into November. Larger blooms, bluer shade.

We grow two cultivars. Both bloom heavily and are

- highly deer resistant,
- drought tolerant,
- clay adapted,
- pest and disease free,
- provide high quality late season forage for pollinators.
- Best in full sun to light shade.
- Specialist bee plants

Carlotta Aromatic Aster

A regional selection great for naturalizing. Spreads aggressively to 8-10 feet wide, making it great to cover a steep bank, and blooms even later, often into late November.
