

Bluestar

the Genus Amsonia (including several species and cultivars)

Blue Flowers and Excellent Foliage Distinguish these Fine Native Plants

All the Bluestars are frequented by Bumblebees. This variety is Blue Ice, growing 12-15 inches tall with darker flowers than most varieties.

We grow several species and cultivated varieties. All are

- deer resistant,
- clay adapted,
- disease free,
- produce attractive seed pods for winter interest
- turn golden yellow in fall

Arkansas Bluestar has fine foliage for great texture and spectacular fall color.

The Bluestars are a wonderful group of long lived perennials to incorporate in the native habitat garden. All have late spring blooms in various shades from pale silvery to purplish blue, and all have clean foliage and nice shapes to fill in the landscape all season.
